Executive Director's Corner No Child Left Inside-Colorado Coalition Guest Author Julie Gustafson, CAEE Board President

You know the value you provide to your learners through your environmental education programs. You see the moment when they first realize they are connected to the world around them. You prepare them to make important decisions that affect our communities and economy. This is important, essential work today, especially because children are becoming increasingly disconnected from the world around them and environmental issues are becoming more and more complex. We need environmental education and it is time that environmental education received the support it deserves.

CAEE is building a coalition of organizations to support environmental education related policies also called No Child Left Inside –Colorado policies. Please consider joining the 29 organizations, representing more than 60,000 people who are already
